VAT refund

What to do when...

- A Czech tax authority refuses to refund VAT?
- You receive a notice, decision or letter from a Czech tax authority?
- You don't know how to proceed or what your procedural options are?
- A Czech taxable person registered for VAT wants to file a foreign VAT refund?

Contact us!

Our indirect taxation and tax proceedings experts consult international clients on how to file for VAT refunds from the Czech Republic. Similarly, our experts advise Czech taxable persons liable to taxation on how to file for VAT refunds from abroad, especially EU Member States. In so doing, they facilitate improved efficiency of VAT refund procedural complexities while striving to reduce the total tax burden and improve cash-flow.

In practice, we often come across cases when clients recklessly forfeit non-negligible VAT refunds, only because of:

- Miscommunication;
- Inadequate cooperation with a tax authority;
- Failure to secure relevant evidence (invoices, contracts, etc.),
- Failure to apply the procedural steps available to taxable persons;
- The applicant being short on time and not having sufficient human resources.

Does any of the above concern you or any of the companies within your group? If so, we will gladly be of any assistance you might need in applying for a VAT refund from the European Union, and we can consult you on communication initiated by tax authorities in matters concerning VAT returns.
